

Executive Summary

Since the mid-1990s, a number of community organizations, government agencies, and business leaders have been helping revitalize a large, historically underserved and economically challenged area of Dallas, Texas, known as West Dallas. The shutdown of a lead smelting facility and cleanup of the surrounding RSR Corporation Superfund site has been an important catalyst in the revitalization. Investigation and cleanup actions by EPA, the State of Texas, the Dallas Housing Authority and private parties helped make it possible for residents to stay in their neighborhoods and led to construction of new public housing and other redevelopment on and near the site. This case study explores the cleanup, continued use and reuse of the RSR Corporation site, illustrating the opportunities and beneficial effects of Superfund redevelopment in action.

Beneficial Effects

- Public housing rebuilt by the Dallas Housing Authority provides a variety of affordable and safe housing options for low-income individuals and families.
- Site businesses and organizations employ over 960 people and contribute over $28 million in annual employment income to the local community.
- Goodwill Industries of Dallas operates a 275,000-square-foot facility on site. Focused on providing job training, continuing education and employment to persons with disabilities and disadvantages, the organization placed over 1,000 people into jobs in 2013.
- Cleanup of over 400 residential properties and over 300 acres of commercial properties lowered lead-related health risks.
- In 2014, site properties generated an estimated $2 million in total tax revenues, with an estimated property value of over $235 million.

Introduction

Superfund cleanups restore value to properties and benefit surrounding communities. Once a property is ready for reuse, it can strengthen a local economy by supporting jobs, new businesses, tax revenues and spending. Cleanups may also take place while properties are in active use. This case study captures the beneficial effects on site and in the community of both the new and continued use of the RSR Corporation site.

The site is located in the West Dallas area of Dallas in Dallas County, Texas. The lead smelter operated near the intersection of Westmoreland Road and Singleton Boulevard, two major roadways in West Dallas. EPA initially identified a 13.6-square-mile area as the Superfund investigation area. The area's borders were Interstate 30, Fort Worth Avenue and Highway 180 to the south, the Trinity River to the east and north, and State Highway Loop 12 and Trinity River's West Fork to the west (Figure 3). After additional investigation, EPA later identified smaller specific areas within and near the investigation area for cleanup.

Site History

Lead smelting operations began in 1934. Murph Metals, Inc. originally operated the lead smelter, producing soft pure lead and specialty alloys. In addition to accepting scrap lead, operators collected used car batteries and disassembled them to extract lead components. At the nearby wrecking facility, workers disassembled the batteries into smaller battery chips. Workers then took them to the Murph Metals smelting facility across the street. Slag was a major waste byproduct of smelting operations. The company reprocessed some slag and battery chips. Material that was not reprocessed was disposed of at the smelter property or in sanitary landfills around West Dallas. In 1971, RSR Corporation acquired the facility from Murph Metals and continued lead smelting.

Smelter operations and waste disposal practices resulted in contamination of surface soils, sediment, sludge and groundwater around West Dallas with lead and other heavy metals. Operations left uncontrolled piles of waste slag around the facility and in area landfills operated by the City of Dallas. In addition, smelter emissions created health risks for adults and children living in West Dallas. Airborne particulates from the smelter and waste piles spread across nearby residential areas.

In the early 1980s, EPA, the State of Texas and the City of Dallas worked together to study the area and address contamination concerns. In 1983, the City and the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) first tried to have RSR Corporation install stack emission controls to stop further contamination. The same year, the City decided not to renew the RSR Corporation's smelter operating permit. The facility shut down in 1984.

To address long-term cleanup and protectiveness, EPA placed the site on the Superfund program's National Priorities List (NPL) in 1995. Several responsible parties entered into Consent Decrees to provide funding to EPA for the cleanup of the smelter, various landfills, and other affected properties in West Dallas. These parties also conducted investigations and cleanup work in the area with oversight by EPA.

Site Investigation and Cleanup

Residential Areas

Nearby Neighborhoods: After the smelter's closure in 1984, RSR Corporation did some initial cleanup of properties in area neighborhoods. The company removed soils with lead concentrations exceeding 500 parts per million (ppm). The company also removed contaminated soils from playgrounds, day care centers and gardens. Excavated areas were filled in with clean soil and revegetated.

A follow-up investigation by EPA in 1991 identified additional contamination around the smelter. In late 1991, EPA conducted removal cleanup actions across this 280-acre area. EPA also completed removal cleanup actions at 211 residences. In 1992 and 1993, EPA and TCEQ conducted a visual survey of 6,825 properties to identify areas where battery chip materials were used as driveway fill resulting in additional EPA removal cleanup actions. During that time, EPA and TCEQ sampled approximately 1,700 residential properties and high risk locations (schools, playgrounds, and daycare centers) in West Dallas and cleaned up over 200 additional residential properties. In 1995, EPA determined that no further action was necessary in residential areas near the smelter or in the larger Superfund investigation area.

Dallas Housing Authority Area: A 460-acre public housing area north of the smelter included multi-family housing units owned by the Dallas Housing Authority (DHA), schools, parks, recreation facilities and a day care center. In 1993, DHA agreed to investigate and clean up contamination in the area. Cleanup took place between 1994 and 1995. Activities included the removal of lead-contaminated materials and backfilling of excavated areas with clean fill. DHA demolished 167 contaminated buildings that housed over 1,000 individual apartments and cleaned up numerous public housing areas totaling more than 200 acres. In 1995, EPA determined that no further action was necessary to address protection of human health and the environment. DHA has since built new public housing across the area. Other redevelopment has included the headquarters building for Goodwill Industries of Dallas and a recently completed primary charter school.

Waste Disposal Areas and Smelter Facilities

Waste Disposal Areas: In 1997, EPA approved a plan to address contaminated soils and sediments associated with landfilled smelting waste and battery casings. Cleanup included excavation of slag waste and battery chips, removal of contaminated sediments, installation of protective caps and implementation of institutional controls to restrict future uses. RSR Corporation completed cleanup actions in 2004. Land uses in these areas currently include an electrical substation, an auto salvage yard and convenience stores.

Former Smelter Facility: An EPA removal action in 1995 contained uncontrolled waste in the area. Long-term cleanup, completed in 2000 and 2001, included building demolition and decontamination, debris removal, contaminated soil excavation and backfilling of excavated areas with clean soil. The area is currently not in use.

Battery Wrecking Facility: RSR Corporation and Murph Metals broke down lead-containing car batteries and disposed of slag waste at these areas west and southwest of the smelter. Between 1988 and 1989, RSR Corporation filled in the main surface impoundment with soil and then placed a thick clay cap over the area. In 1994, an EPA removal action took away leftover waste materials and containers. The site's long-term cleanup included demolition of battery wrecking and vehicle maintenance buildings, cap improvements and a new landfill cap. Following cleanup, EPA regraded and revegetated the landfill area and then revegetated remaining areas with native grasses. Dallas/Fort Worth Lite & Barricade, a company that specializes in transportation safety products such as warning signs and barricades, has plans to locate a new facility within the area.

Local Beneficial Effects

Improved Health

Cleanup of contamination sources and affected residential areas, along with education and outreach, have succeeded in reducing blood lead levels in area children. One study that evaluated changes in blood lead levels of children in Dallas neighborhoods affected by lead smelters, including the RSR smelter, found that average blood lead levels decreased significantly from 23.6 micrograms per deciliter in 1980 to 1.6 micrograms per deciliter in 2002. The study also found an association between lowered blood lead levels and an increase in height, weight and body mass index.<sup>1</sup> Over time, reductions in blood lead levels can improve IQ levels, leading to greater worker productivity and higher worker earnings.<sup>2</sup>

Neighborhoods and New Affordable Housing

Thanks to site cleanup actions, long-time residents in neighborhoods northwest of the intersection of Singleton Boulevard and Westmoreland Road have been able to stay in their homes. Cleanup also made it possible for DHA to build many single-family, multi-family and senior residential units on site, as well as a nursing facility for seniors. Since the early 1990s, DHA has spent over $100 million on redevelopment projects in the area, creating about 1,200 affordable housing units. Affordable housing provides renters and homebuyers with a variety of benefits. It can make it easier for individuals and families to pay for important goods and services, such as healthy meals and medical care. It can strengthen child development and children's school performance and lead to healthier families and lives. More broadly, new affordable housing can boost local spending, create jobs, reduce foreclosures and serve as a regional competitive advantage in efforts to bring new businesses to town.<sup>3</sup>

Habitat for Humanity Affordable Housing

Two out of four Habitat for Humanity neighborhoods in West Dallas are located on site within the DHA area. Since the cleanup of the site, DHA and Habitat for Humanity have partnered for several years to bring much needed housing to the lowest income earners in West Dallas, many of whom could not afford to purchase homes of their own. The Dallas Area Habitat for Humanity's current offices are located just southeast of the DHA area in the building formerly used by Goodwill Industries of Dallas.

Businesses, Organizations and Jobs

Cleaned-up site areas are home to over 20 businesses and organizations. They provide over $28 million in estimated annual employment income, which strengthens local spending and investment. Some of the businesses and organizations active on site include Goodwill Industries of Dallas, the Dallas Housing Authority-Central Office, Lakewest YMCA and educational institutions.

Goodwill Industries of Dallas

Goodwill Industries of Dallas, Inc.'s central processing facility for donated goods supplies over 20 Goodwill stores across the Dallas metropolitan area. After outgrowing its old location in West Dallas, the company built a new facility on 46 acres acquired from DHA. Courted by surrounding localities, the company chose to stay in West Dallas and be part of the area's revitalization. Construction began in late 2000; employees moved into the 275,000-square-foot facility in 2002. In addition to the processing area, the facility includes meeting space, offices and a retail store. Goodwill Dallas contributes an estimated $11.6 million in annual employment income.

Goodwill Dallas focuses on providing job training, continuing education and employment to persons with disabilities and disadvantages. The goal is to help people transform their lives through the power of jobs. In 2013, Goodwill Dallas placed 1,008 people into jobs that provided $15 million in income and benefits.<sup>4</sup> The organization's resale and recycling of donated goods also benefits the environment. In 2013, Goodwill Dallas collected 29 million pounds of recycled and reusable materials from its donation stations. Thanks to its detailed sorting system, only about 18 percent of the material goes to landfills.

Dallas Housing Authority Central Office

DHA, created in 1938, provides housing opportunities for nearly 60,000 people in Dallas. The authority opened its central office on site in 1993. The office, located on North Hampton Road, contributes over $4.4 million in annual employment income earnings. Construction of the office was a cornerstone of early West Dallas revitalization efforts.<sup>5</sup>

Lakewest YMCA

In the late 1990s, a new community center was a top priority in West Dallas. DHA collaborated with YMCA of Metropolitan

Dallas to make the Lakewest Family YMCA facility possible.<sup>6</sup> The facility opened in 2000. It hosts several community services in addition to recreation facilities. These services include Head Start of Greater Dallas and the Parkland Health System's Lake West Women's Health Center.<sup>7</sup> In total, these organizations contribute an estimated $712,000 in annual employment income

Educational Institutions

There are several schools on site. They include public schools that are part of the Dallas Independent School District – Amelia Earhart Learning Center, George Washington Carver Learning Center and the Dallas Environmental Science Academy. These facilities employ teachers, administrators and support staff, providing an estimated $7.5 million in annual employment income. The private West Dallas Community School contributes an estimated $1.6 million in annual employment income. Uplift Education and DHA have also partnered to bring high quality education to the children living in the DHA housing area. Uplift Education focuses on underserved communities where more high quality, free public education choices are needed. Uplift Education offers “safe, free schools where 100% of the graduates are accepted into college.” Uplift Education has built multiple charter schools within the DHA housing area. The newly constructed Uplift Heights Primary School, located directly north of DHA's central office opened its doors to the children of West Dallas in August 2015.

Superfund Redevelopment and the RSR Corporation Site

EPA's mission is to protect human health and the environment. Ensuring that communities can safely reclaim and reuse formerly contaminated lands is an important part of the Agency's work. Accordingly, EPA has developed a wide array of tools, resources and services to help interested parties explore reuse opportunities at Superfund sites that benefit communities and ensure the long-term protectiveness of site remedies.

EPA has supported redevelopment efforts at the RSR Corporation site in several ways. A community-based reuse assessment in 2000 identified local needs and prioritized future use opportunities for the site. In 2006, EPA, TCEQ and the City of Dallas signed Ready for Reuse Determinations indicating that former waste disposal areas, the smelter area and the battery wrecking facility could support a variety of reuses. Today, EPA responds regularly to inquiries from developers and other interested parties about reuses compatible with the site's remedy.

Property Value and Tax Revenue

Remediated properties and businesses also generate property tax revenues that benefit Dallas County, the City of Dallas, the local school district, a community college and a hospital. In 2014, site properties generated an estimated $2 million in tax revenues, with an estimated total property value of over $235 million. On-site businesses that produce retail sales and services also generate tax revenues through the collection of sales taxes, which support state and local governments.<sup>8</sup>

Ongoing Revitalization in Greater West Dallas

The extensive investigations and cleanup overseen by EPA in cooperation with TCEQ and the City of Dallas have also played an important part in ongoing efforts by city agencies, community development organizations, business leaders and local residents to revitalize greater West Dallas. Other important factors in the revitalization since the 1990s include new housing developments and detailed revitalization planning, including the 2011 West Dallas Urban Structure and Guidelines report. Infrastructure improvements – such as completion of Margaret Hunt Hill Bridge in 2012 – have also been critical. The City of Dallas’ Tax Increment Financing (TIF) Zone, in place across part of West Dallas since 2007, has also spurred redevelopment of the urban corridor.<sup>9</sup> The 448-acre TIF Zone enhances local investment by providing funds to improve public amenities and infrastructure. An area once dominated by heavy industrial uses is now seeing significant new commercial and residential development. Some of these projects are highlighted below. All these developments, apart from the Margaret Hunt Hill Bridge, are taking place within the RSR site Superfund investigation area.

Trinity Groves and Other Projects near the Margaret Hunt Hill Bridge

Trinity Groves is West Dallas’ most publicized development. This 15-acre mixed-use project next to Margaret Hunt Hill Bridge includes restaurants, stores and artist workspaces. Sparking development of new businesses, and especially restaurants, is a priority in the area. Several new restaurants are up and running featuring a wide array of dining options.<sup>10</sup> Other new businesses include The Workroom and Four Corners Brewing Company. Several apartment and retail projects are in the planning stages, including one slated for a 40-acre former industrial property.

Recent Apartment Development

Two recent projects – a family apartment complex (Taylors Farm) and apartments for seniors (Hillside West) – are located in the Pinnacle Park area of West Dallas, just west of former slag piles at the site. Taylors Farm is a Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED)-certified community incorporating smart growth and green building principles.<sup>11</sup> Completed in 2011, it includes 160 apartments in seven four-story buildings. The complex offers one-, two- and three-bedroom units. Hillside West, completed in 2013, offers 130 units of housing customized for seniors. In 2014, Hillside West received LEED Silver certification.<sup>12</sup>

Animal Care Center and Shelter

In 2012, SPCA of Texas, an animal welfare organization, opened the 70,000-square-foot Jan Rees-Jones Animal Care Center and Myron K. Martin Spay/Neuter & Wellness Clinic.<sup>13</sup> The facility is located east of the former battery wrecking facility property. SPCA of Texas generates an estimated $15.4 million in annual sales revenues. Estimated annual employment income is over $1.7 million.

Lakewest Town Center

This shopping center is located on the southeast corner of the DHA property. Stores include Minyard Food Stores, AutoZone, Citi Trends, Metro PCS and Dollar Store, among others. Minyard Food Stores, a key anchor tenant, provides customers access to fresh produce and healthy food. The store provides nearly $584,000 in estimated annual employment income.

DHA purchased the property in 1992 for $2.5 million to make sure stores and other services would be available for its residents. DHA then spent another $2.5 million to redevelop it. In 2014, DHA invested an additional $3 million in the property. More renovations are planned for 2015. When DHA purchased the shopping center, it was 55 percent occupied. Today, the property's occupancy rate is 92 percent.

Conclusion

For 50 years, lead waste and pollutants poured out of the RSR Corporation site's smelter stack and rained down across neighborhoods, schools and business districts. Today, following extensive cleanup and long-term revitalization planning by the community, a new day is dawning in West Dallas. Cleanup has enabled continued use of homes, schools, parks and other vital community facilities. Remediated areas now host new land uses as well. More than twenty businesses and organizations on site provide over 960 jobs and contribute an estimated $28 million in annual employment income to the local community.

Looking forward, there are additional opportunities on the horizon – the reuse of the former smelter facility and waste disposal areas. Ongoing planning and coordination among community and government partners and the private sector will help ensure that public health, environmental protection and economic growth remain core components of long-term revitalization in West Dallas.

"The RSR lead smelter left a 50 year legacy of pollution in West Dallas. EPA's lead cleanup 20 years ago not only protected public health but also proved to be a critical first step to community development. Since the cleanup, public housing has been completely restructured and restored; clean businesses such as Goodwill Industries now provide employment; innovative restaurants have established a toehold in the community; and, there is now a supermarket in what was a food desert."

Reuse and the Benefit to Community RSR Corporation

Technical Appendix

Employment Information for On-site Jobs

EPA obtained information on the number of employees and sales volume for on-site businesses from the Hoovers/Dun & Bradstreet (D&B) database. EPA also gathered information on businesses and corporations from D&B. D&B maintains a database of over 225 million active and inactive businesses worldwide, including public records, financials, private company insight, extensive global information, telephone numbers and physical addresses. The Data Universal Numbering System (DUNS) number is a unique nine-digit identification number assigned by D&B to each business and its location within the D&B database for identifying each business. When Hoovers/D&B database research could not identify employment and sales volume for on-site businesses, EPA used the Manta database. Both databases include data reported by businesses. Accordingly, some reported values might be underestimates or overestimates. In some instances, business and employment information came from business representatives. While sales values typically exceed estimated totals of annual income, sales can sometimes be lower than estimated income. This could be attributed to a number of business conditions and/or data reporting. Data included in this Technical Appendix are obtained directly from reputable sources, and reported as presented by those sources.

Wage and Income Information for On-site Jobs

EPA obtained wage and income information from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). The BLS is a governmental statistical agency that collects, processes, analyzes and disseminates essential statistical data to the American public, the U.S. Congress and other federal agencies in the broad field of labor economics and statistics. The data EPA obtained from the BLS has high standards of accuracy and consistently high statistical quality, and impartiality in both subject matter and presentation.

EPA used the BLS Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages database to obtain average weekly wage data for the businesses located at the RSR Corporation Superfund site. Average weekly wage data were identified by matching the North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) codes corresponding with each type of business with weekly wage data for corresponding businesses in Dallas County. If not available at the county level, wage data were sought by state or national level, respectively. In cases where wage data were not available for the six-digit NAICS code, higher level (less detailed) NAICS codes were used to obtain the wage data.

To determine the annual wages (mean annual) earned from jobs generated by each of the selected businesses located at the RSR Corporation Superfund site, the average weekly wage figure was multiplied by the number of weeks in a year (52) and by the number of jobs (employees) for each of the businesses.

Property Values and Local Tax Revenue Generated from Property Taxes

EPA obtained data on the 2014 assessed values for property parcels at the RSR Corporation Superfund site in January 2015 using data products available through the Dallas Central Appraisal District (<http://dallascad.org/GISDataProducts.aspx>). EPA calculated 2014 total estimated property tax amounts for site parcels by dividing each taxing jurisdiction’s taxable value for the applicable property by 100, multiplying this amount by the taxing jurisdiction’s tax rate and then summing the resulting tax amounts for each jurisdiction (city, county, independent school district, hospital, and college).<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> A property’s taxable value may not be based on the property’s total market value of land and improvements. A property’s taxable value may also vary across taxing jurisdictions.

<sup>2</sup> Properties included in this table fall partly or entirely within the EPA identified cleanup areas. Whether a property within a specific cleanup area was subject to an EPA Superfund cleanup action depended upon the specific characteristics of the property.
